Guide to business suits

For the corporate businessman, a practical suit is an everyday affair. Luckily, Suit Master is here to help make sure you look your best at the workplace without spending a fortune on designer business suits. The secret is in learning the basics-which means learning what types of suits you need to purchase and how to wear them. The following is a quick guide to the essential pieces you will need to build a great office wardrobe.

If you have the type of job that requires you to wear a suit to the workplace, it is obvious that you simply cannot wear the same men's suit every day. According to our designers, there are five main suits that will take you from Monday through Friday, and possibly into the weekend. The first one is the classic grey suit (1). Suit Master recommends a medium grey suit, which is appropriate for the office, whether you're interviewing for the job or conducting the interview. You can wear a medium grey suit with almost any color shirt, including white, soft blue or light pink.

The second suit is the solid navy suit (2). The navy suit has the versatility to take you to work and lead you straight to an evening out on the town. Similar to the gray, it pairs well with almost any shirt-and-tie combination. To look extra stylish, Suit Master recommends wearing a solid navy dress suit with a crisp white shirt, dark solid tie, and a pocket square.

While the black suit (3) is traditionally considered the wedding or funeral suit, it is now a staple at the office. In order to pull this one off, Suit Master recommends that you stick to a slim cut that fits you correctly. Coming in at fourth place, the navy pinstriped suit (4) is always a classic. This suit can be worn with a solid color shirt and tie, or for the daring, mixed with a striped shirt and striped tie. The bottom line when sporting a pinstriped suit is to stick to the same color family. Finally, a great suit to have in your closet, especially during the spring and summer months is the khaki cotton suit (5). Wear a khaki cotton suit with a solid shirt such as blue, white, or pink, and a dark tie at the office. For an evening out, We are sure you know how to loosen the tie.

Formal Wear

When it comes to men’s fashion , undoubtedly one area that has seen some of the most upheaval in the last century is formal wear. By definition, formal dress refers to clothing deemed appropriate for formal social events like a wedding, a gala or an important horse race.

At Suit Master we have several styles of formal wear available for any special occasion, speak to us to find out what’s in at the moment and what’s not. We do welcome group buy for weddings, casinos , sports clubs etc.

WINTER COATS

As the cold winds drift from the north one finds the warmth of a new winter coat a welcome retreat. There are many coat options to help you brace yourself against the elements. You’ll be better served by a traditional coat that ends midway between your thigh and knee.

If you knew how to pick a winter coat, you’d know the difference between a jacket and a coat: a jacket rests at your hips and does little to keep you truly warm and can’t be worn over a thick sweater or blazer, and a coat is made of a thicker, natural fabric and is a must to keep you warm.

So, to keep you toasty when the temperatures turn frigid, ask us for more styles and colors available.

The CLASSIC, FANCY and WHITE ON WHITE shirting collections

The classic, fancy and white on white collections has been carefully selected to create luxury men's clothing offering anything from classic to contemporary looks. These collections are made from the very fine giza and Egyptian cottons. Cotton is the world's favorite fabric because of its soft feel, durability and adaptability, making cotton the ideal choice for hot and cold climates. Whatever kind of fabric you favor, chances are it has cotton in the fabric.

Natural fibers are even more important in a shirt than in a jacket because a shirt sits closest to your skin. Durability, Crispness, and comfort nearly all the elements of a great shirt are due to the fabric from which its made. Cotton is comfortable and breathable, absorbent and static-resistant.

There are many kinds of cotton weaves. From oxford to pinpoint, twill to herringbone, so work with your tailor (Suit Master) to find the rich styles or combination of styles for you.
